PAPAGO TROUBLES. The hand of the very erratic Indian agent who has control of the Pima agency and the general appervision of the Papago reservation, is again seen as a disturbing element, and if trouble grows out of his unaccountable conduct, the department that persists in retaining such an incompetent agent will be regarded as a particeps criminis in the strife. He has often been shown to be a meddler and a vindictive, coarse, volgar and ignorant Bombastes Furioso. and it is also hinted that a long catalogue of serious charges against him are "mostly true."

The trouble at issue is as follows: In 1882 a tract of land was located at the the Baboquivari mountians, where i was then supposed a flow of water could be obtained. The Indians had never even camped upon the lands months ago the claim was sold stone, who have improved the property by clearing off and putting five acres under cultivation, dug a well seventy feet deep, constructed irrigating ditches, built a house and correls and have sev. enty-five head of cattle. They were making a home at that place and Mr. Davis had taken his wife and child to the ranch to reside.

About a week ago a party of Papago Indians went to the house and showed Mr. Davis a piece of paper signed by H. G. Wheeler, Indian agent, that read that the bearer, a Papago, was entitled to Ir has long been the favorite theme one hundred and sixty acres of land and with the democratic press to charge a spring, wherever he might choose to upon the republican party all responsilocate it, under the provisions of some builty for giving away vast tracts of set of Congress that escaped Mr. Davis' the public domain to railroads. A Good Word for the Mines.

The New York San says: There is no doubt that millions have been lost in sharps and saddled upon Eastern simpletons, but the mining swindler's era is over and there are ample indication that legitimate investment in sound and well managed properties is going to rerive again. Mining is an antiring industry, and with new appliances, improved machinery and a little honesty the management of the properties, there is no reason why mining investcents should not once more become as popular as they were five or six years ago, and as they are in the precious metal-producing countries.
